

PERADON

SINCE 1885

PERADON - CUES OF QUALITY

Founded in 1885 Peradon are the world's oldest cue manufacturing company who were responsible for the introduction and manufacture of the handspliced cue, setting the standards for others to follow.

Our cues have been used by the game's greatest players and continue to be used by high-ranking professionals. Probably the game's most famous player, Joe Davis, also favoured a Peradon cue and gave the company sole rights to use his name.

Peradon cues are made in England using unrivalled historical knowledge and skills to produce cues that have the desired "feel" that distinguishes our quality cues from the rest. We use the traditional cue making techniques developed by our company with the advantages of some modern techniques. The utmost care and attention to detail throughout manufacture ensures that the standards of quality we maintain are unbeaten by any other manufacturer in the world.

Our company purchases more timber than any other English cue manufacturer enabling us to select a higher quality of Ash or Maple for the production of the shaft. Having been cut to an oversize square the shaft timbers are left to settle for a period before the craftsman shapes this to an accurately dimensioned cue blank. Further selection processes then grade the cues for machine, or handspliced cues and ensure that only the finest timbers with the correct strength and straightness are used.

The butt timber is then spliced onto the shaft, there are two methods of splicing, either by machine or by hand. The two methods being very different and producing cues of different appearances.

Machine Splicing is less expensive than hand splicing but is a very effective way of adding the hardwood butt timber to the shaft. The butt timber is cut to provide four points, which are glued into four slots machined into the shaft timber. The finished cue has a distinctive four point pattern where the butt meets the shaft.

Handsplicing is the traditional method developed by Peradon for splicing the butt timber to the shaft. The shaft, which at this stage is an oversize cylindrical taper, has two flats planed on opposite sides of the butt end. The Hardwood butt timber, usually Ebony, is glued to these flats. The cue is then rotated through 90° and two further flats are planed and two more pieces of butt timber glued in place. The cue is then shaped to produce the distinctive four rounded point pattern where the butt meets the shaft.

The appearance of the cues can be further enhanced with additional splices of Peradon's large range of exotic timbers and colourful veneers.

Jointed cues are then cut at the appropriate position and a brass joint is carefully fitted taking great care to ensure that the grain of the shaft timber lines up either side of the joint. This shows that the cue is made from one piece of shaft timber, which is imperative to the performance of the cue, because it ensures that the timber is consistent in strength throughout the length of the cue.

The joint positions provide different styles of cue. Two piece cues have the joint fitted in the centre whilst $\frac{3}{4}$ jointed cues are available with the joint located 12", 14" or 16" from the butt and will accept an optional extension. Most cues now also feature butt end joints where an extension may be screwed directly into the end of the butt. All jointed Peradon cues feature solid brass 'Quick Action' joints, which release within a maximum of 1½ turns.

Numerous sanding and finishing processes are then undertaken to achieve a unique 'silk smooth' finish prior to the fitting of the brass ferrule and Elk Master tip.

Legends Of the Baize

Many of the Peradon Joe Davis and Peradon Walter Lindrum cues of yesteryear have become highly desired collectable cues, these two new editions offer the traditional styling of the day with the benefits of modern day touches such as the butt end joint and quick action joint.

ELK-PRO TIPS

The “Elk-Pro” tip is manufactured to unprecedented tolerances of shape and hardness by the world’s most respected tip makers Tweeten Fibre Co. in the USA.

The hand selected, chrome tanned, prime leather together with newly developed treatment processes ensure the Elk-Pro tip delivers maximum ball control, while newly developed shaping presses offer previously unseen tip consistency. Each tip is individually graded for hardness using new testing techniques specifically developed for production of these tips making it possible to offer the Elk-Pro in accurate Soft, Medium or Hard options.

- Hand selected, chrome tanned leather from the prime portion of the hide
- Undergoes new enhanced treatment processes to eliminate impurities and ensure total saturation of the leather
- Hand sorted then pressed into shape using a new technique to improve consistency of shape
- Tip consistency maintained in all batches produced through new accurate hardness testing techniques, developed specifically for production of this tip
- Regardless of the hardness chosen the fibre of the tips has been maintained for greater chalk adhesion, so even the hard tips do not feel too solid
- Available in sizes 9mm, 9.5mm, 10mm, 11mm, 13mm and 14mm in soft, medium or hard options
- The perfect partner for Triangle-Pro Chalk

TAOM CHALK

Since its introduction this hand made chalk from Finland has created quite a name for itself with many professional players saying that using this chalk they now enjoy 'kick free' play with no bad contacts. The composition of the chalk also reduces chalk dust so it does not mark the balls or cloth and even reduces chalk dust on player's hands.

1G TOURNAMENT CHAMPION BALLS

1G Tournament Champion balls as used in all W.S.A. and I.B.S.F. Tournaments are now exclusively available in the UK from Peradon. For over 40 years Aramith have supplied sets of Tournament Champion balls to the World Snooker Professional Players Association. Whilst they may appear to be standard Tournament Champion snooker sets they are in fact drastically different having only a one gram maximum weight difference between balls in a set rather than the 3 gram tolerance within a standard set of Tournament Champion balls. This reduction in tolerance allows the W.S.A. professional players to reach the highest scores during W.S.A. Tournaments. The balls are supplied in an elegant storage case (branded with both the W.S.A and I.B.S.F. logos) to enable players wanting to emulate tournament conditions to carry their own set of balls.
